Rudolph Wendt, Pianist, To Perform in Concert

Pianist Rudolph Wendt will be soloist at the third concert of the Missoula Symphony Orchestra and Chorale Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the University Theater.

Mr. Wendt, professor of music, will perform the "Third Piano Concerto" by Bela Bartok. This concert was Bartok's last work and was finished just before his death.

Beethoven's "Sixth Symphony" and Chabrier's "Espagna Rhapsody" will be performed by the orchestra and chorale, directed by Eugene Andrie, professor of music. "Espagna Rhapsody" is the colorful impression of Spain by a Frenchman.

Herring Jensen, philosophy instructor, recently joined the orchestra as violinist. He has played in the Vancouver Symphony and on radio in Canada.

A public lecture on the music of the concert is scheduled Friday at 10 a.m. in the Lodge. Mr. Weigel will speak on the "Third Piano Concerto," and music will be played by violinist Virginia Johnson and pianist Larissa Janczen.

Saturday at 3 p.m. a children's concert will be performed in the University Theater. The theme of the concert will be "What Music Tells Us About People," and Mr. Andrie will be the commentator. There will be no admission charge.

Attempt to Hike 50 Miles in 12 Hours Fails, but Trio to Try Again March 16

Heavy traffic and blisters defeated an ambitious trio's attempt to walk 50 miles in 12 hours Saturday.

Maj. Donald Fox and Capt. Angus MacDonald of the ROTC Department and Mersch Ward, a geology major, began hiking to Missoula from about three miles out of Drummond early Saturday morning.

Capt. MacDonald, wearing hard tanker's boots, dropped out of the jaunt about 28 miles later when he developed blisters on his feet.

Maj. Fox and Ward continued, but traffic forced them to leave the highway. They spent much of the trip walking along the railroad tracks.

This departure from their route slowed them, and they reached Missoula after 19 hours and 45 minutes of hiking. Five hours, however, was spent sleeping in a powerhouse on the Milwaukee railroad.

Unsatisfied with the outcome of Saturday's stroll, the officers said they will try it again March 16. At that time they will be trying to do it in 12 hours or less.

Rep. Powell Draws Fire Of GOP House Members

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans challenged the Democratic leadership Tuesday to do something about Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y.

In a series of House speeches they said the activities of the chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee are damaging the reputation of Congress.

And they vigorously denied Powell's claim that in traveling overseas on government funds and keeping his wife on his office payroll he is only doing what every other member of Congress does.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration told selected members of Congress at the time four Americans were killed on combat flights during the 1961 invasion of Cuba, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said Tuesday.

'Fallout' Opens Run Tonight

By MARY ELLEN MYRENE

The Theater of the Absurd has baffled some of the world's most sophisticated audiences. MSU gets its chance tonight.

When "Fallout" opens its five-day run with a premiere showing at 8:15 p.m., its Big Sky audience will see a sampling of the theater avant-garde termed by most modernists the "Theater of the Absurd."

Douglas Bankson's play promises to be one with more than a normal share of bright satirical wits and clever play on words.

Indeed, the plot that Mr. Bankson has created amply hints that his play will be satire supreme. Briefly, the story is about the all-American Fisher family which wins a two-weeks vacation in a family-sized fallout shelter.

After contentedly feeding on each other's nerves, the six-member family is handed a blow when a real nuclear warning traps them in the shelter. Trapped with them is Stoodley, a super-smile TV commentator, and his leggy assistant, Pussycat.

The entire third act is one of reaction. Its ending, fashioned in the style of Edgar Allen Poe, must remain unknown until it happens.

So Mr. Bankson's play is an easy one to enjoy; but unless the audience can understand it, it will miss much of the production's true satirical value and social import.

What is the "Absurd"? French playwright Eugene Ionesco terms it, "That which is devoid of purpose." The task then is to find out what is "devoid of purpose" in the play.

Perhaps this quote will give a clue: "Cut off from his religious, metaphysical and transcendental roots, man is lost; all his actions become senseless, absurd and useless."

What better way is there to cut man off than to put him in a fallout shelter—first for fun and then for real?

However, the most important thing to remember in preparing for this play is—don't prepare. Try to avoid pre-play expectations that so unfailingly bemuddle the "sophisticated" audiences referred to in the beginning—the ones which were confused.

Simply clear your mind and let the play work. Mr. Bankson knows what he's doing.

Venture Distribution Scheduled

The winter quarter issue of Venture, the campus literary magazine, will be distributed during final week, Editor MaryLou Cushman reported to Publications Committee yesterday. Twenty-five hundred copies are being printed.

Miss Cushman said she hopes to have next quarter's magazine distributed before final week spring quarter.

Two students won more than one prize in the Venture writing contest, Miss Cushman said, and a policy limiting the number of prizes for any one person may have to be made.

Bruce Marsh, committee member, said he was displeased that the Venture staff named 12 winners instead of nine in the contest without approval from Publications Committee.

Miss Cushman replied that Venture is allowed to divide the money in any manner it wishes. She said she notified the committee of this decision last week, and was not asking the committee's permission to carry out the decision.

Vernon Anderson gave the Sentinel progress report. Publications Committee will consider next week a motion to provide the University with Sentinels at cost rather than at $3.50 per book as has been done in the past. This would insure the Sentinel against loss if the price per book went over $3.50.

Farcical Play to Be Televised

"Corporal Punishment," a farcical comedy by Don Lathrup, will be telecast via closed circuit TV to the Liberal Arts Building at 7:30 tonight.

The half-hour show is being produced by the Radio-TV Workshop under the direction of Philip J. Hess, assistant professor of journalism and acting director, Radio-TV studios.

The Pentagon provides the setting for the play and the action is provided by a Pentagon subcommittee. The theme is centered around governmental red tape.

The cast is composed of Rich Wagstaff, David Lester, Ray Dille, Bruce Marsh, Boe Hoene and Roger Zentzis.

Cameramen are Ned Taylor and Martha Olsen; floor director is Ray Kent; boom operator is Sally Neath. Roy Raymond will be in charge of audio effects and Milo Moucha will operate the switches.

Look Homeward, Saints

(Editor's Note—During this Kaimin's term we often have published fact and opinion on the popular subject of Communism and anti-Communism. We call it popular because today's newsmakers frequently are concerned with the subject, and we cannot deny that it has an endearing effect on our lives; i.e., national political and philosophical attitude, foreign aid, defense tax money, the play on our freedoms, etc.—the effects of which gradually filter down to impose on each individual. At the risk of becoming boorish, we again write of an aspect of international Communism's effects; one last conjecture, you might say, before this staff terminates its office.)

Americans generally agree that the "greatest threat to world peace" is the international Communist movement. When the Khrushchev crowd repeats that old slogan, "We'll bury you," and makes pronounced attempts to do just that, one can understand why the Red organization is termed a menace. However, evident problems arise when we try to determine those people responsible for propagating and enacting Communist ideals, the significance of the threat, where it exists, and how to eliminate it.

Some apparently have overcome the problems and offer many ready solutions. We all are witness to the reaction to post-World War II Communism, as seen primarily in the American Right Wing and its divergent feather-clans. The reaction basically is founded on fear, a result of the real threat in some cases and parochial ignorance in others. To this reaction, another reaction has occurred which stems mainly from the American Left Wing, the independents and some Republicans. They are motivated by a different kind of fear. Their stated fears are that the eager anti-Communists may easily impinge on the rights of innocent people. If this is the case, then the "protectors" become destroyers of the system they profess to be saving.

Opinions greatly diverge in answer to the question: What really is a Communist? Do we count Communist sympathizers as part of the menace, and others who share some of their views but carry no Red card? Where do we draw the line, or should every suspect be purged just to make sure? Or should we purge anyone? Obviously, one could never provide universally acceptable answers to these questions. Hence, we receive as many different judgments as there are judges.

Only fools give absolute, black-and-white answers. They claim that the only choice is to be Red or dead should the Cold War temperature rise to a nuclear degree. Conversely, the opposite and equally foolish extreme cries for peace at any cost, giveaway plans for appeasement, a selfish gnawing at the American foundation.

Extreme to extreme. Reaction to reaction. Where is the rational middle ground? We only know that it's a dangerous place to explore for fear of being labeled a "Communist dupe" (as we have been called). Respect for honest compromise and moderation is dead. You see the decaying fumes when you observe a debate between the extremists: for instance, William F. Buckley Jr. and Norman Mailer in the latest December and January issues of Playboy magazine. Better yet, on campus listen to an ultra-conservative and an angry young (liberal) man scratch at each other's hide. Listen to them hurl subtle insults at each other, the Ah-I've-got-you-now cry of momentous victory, the Oh-no-you-haven't retaliation. Observe the proud, swaggering vanity drive each one on to the point of pure irrelevancy.

Listen, observe and wonder. Wonder that neither party really wants to win the war, only the little battle. They are out for prestige in a most pathetic display of cheap debate. No—no compromise, no rational discussion, no admitting that one just might be wrong just once. No, that would be to give, to understand, to humble oneself. Those qualities apparently have no place in the quest for world peace, if there be such a thing. From Montana Forum to the summits at Geneva, the same story is told and retold.

So what do you do? Say, "To hell with it, I'm going home"? Our generation is confronted with exactly this problem. To do or not to do. To do what? Perhaps it is terrifying to think that minority (fortunately) extremists might gain control of this government. For they are right and you, disagreeing, are wrong. They surely would vindicate the law that total power corrupts totally—and that's what they want. It, like Communism, is as "un-American" as anything. But we will compromise and let them continue. For what better way to prove the strength of the bristling American system than to give these radicals a wall to bash their furry heads against?

The Kaimin is interested in publishing readers' views on this subject. We hope to have provided some stimulus for comment, whether our own views are agreeable or not.

Gore Vidal Predicts

Robert F. Kennedy May Be Presidential Candidate in 1968

NEW YORK (AP)—Playwright Gore Vidal says Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy will be the Democratic candidate for president in 1968 but "it will take a public relations genius to make him appear lovable."

He also says the attorney general "would be a dangerously authoritarian-minded president." Vidal, a personal friend of President Kennedy, says in an article in Esquire magazine that the President will be re-elected in 1964.

Vidal, a resident of Tarrytown, N.Y., grew up for a time in the same Virginia home with the President's wife. They had the same stepfather.

Gore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Vidal. Mrs. Vidal subsequently was married to Hugh Auchincloss, who later was married to Jacqueline Kennedy's mother, Mrs. John Bouvier.

Vidal, a Democrat aligned with the liberal wing of the party, campaigned on the Kennedy platform in 1960 when he unsuccessfully ran for Congress in New York's 29th District, which includes five counties in the Hudson River Valley.

In the magazine article, Vidal says of 1968:

"There is no doubt that when Bobby goes before the convention in '68 he will seem beautifully qualified—and from the point of view of sheer experience he will be qualified."

"But there are flaws in his person hard to disguise. For one thing, it will take a public relations genius to make him appear lovable. He is not."

"His obvious characteristics are energy, vindictiveness and a simpleness about human motives which may yet bring him down."

"To Bobby the world is white or black. They and us. He has none of his brother's ease; or charity."

The article says that while President Kennedy is perfectly suited to the office, brother Robert is not.

A spokesman for Robert Kennedy in Washington said there would be no comment by him on the article.

Taxpayer Says Parking Fine Unjust

To the Editor:

Because this is a letter which I think should be printed, inasmuch as it very probably asserts the reactions of a number of people, I am asking that it appear in your paper. I am sending a copy of it to Pres. H. K. Newburn in hope that he may lend his influence to remedy the unfair situation.

On Friday, Feb. 8 (not the 13th, although it seemed to be traditionally like that day) I was fined $1 for parking in a place which to me seemed a reasonable place to park. It was not marked in any way which I thought could prevent my parking there. When I came back to the car parked in the same locality but not the same spot another parking ticket was in the windshield. This time the fine was $3. Again there was no sign to indicate that particular position was designated for Faculty as they showed me later on a very inferior map.

Later I talked to other people who had had the same experience. Because the University charges exorbitant sums for parking in the wrong place, I would think they would be able to afford signs to tell people what is Faculty and other parking. I realize that there are "Open Lots" rather far from all the buildings and as a student from now on I shall use them or the public streets when I can find such spaces closer to the buildings. But as a taxpayer in both the state and city I feel that this business of not marking fully the parking places smacks of a racket. Can't we have this changed so others won't get caught as I did without knowing the reason for their "crime"?

CUB CAPTAIN—Ron Harper, 6-2 forward-guard from Sidney, Mont., was elected captain of the MSU Cubs by his freshman teammates last week. Harper, one of the most improved Cubs over the course of the season, finished second in rebounding with 77, one behind leader John Quist. His 14 rebounds against the MSC Bobkittens on Feb. 16 was the single game high for a Cub this season. Harper had 53 points for the year, an average of 4.4 a game, and was one of the top defensive men on the squad.

Mythical State Basketball Crown at Stake In Grizzly-Bobcat Battle Tomorrow Night

The Grizzlies will try to even their four-game series against the Bobcats in the Field House tomorrow evening and prevent the Cats from being crowned the mythical champions of Montana for the first time since the 1950-51 season.

The Bobcats now hold a 2-1 lead in the series as a result of 78-68 and 77-68 victories in Bozeman two weeks ago. The Grizzlies won the first game 78-71 in Missoula late in January.

MSU has managed to win or break even with MSC for the last 12 years. The Bobcats, however, hold a 95-75 lead in all games played between the two schools, who will be in the same conference for the first time beginning next year.

The Grizzlies, 6-17, have won their last three home games which include victories over the Bobcats and two high ranking small college teams—Orange State and Weber College.

The Bobcats evened their record at 11-11 with the two victories over MSU and have not played since that time.

The big factor in the two Cat wins was a tremendous edge in rebounding, 63-40 and 72-41. Last Saturday, against Weber, the Grizzlies hauled down 50 rebounds compared to the Wildcats 37, an edge they have not often enjoyed this year.

Francis Ricci, 6-4 forward, who injured his knee against the Cats two weeks ago will probably not be able to play tomorrow night, according to Naseby Rhinehart, MSU trainer. Ricci has not practiced with the team this week.

The game will be the final of the season for the Grizzlies.

WILMA THEATRE

Wanted: Spirited Spectators

By EMILY MELTON

The Bobcats will creep into Grizzly territory tomorrow night. What are we going to do about it? The first thing to be done is to get our Grizzlies in the fiercest mood possible. Then let 'em at the Bobcats!

Now you ask, "How in the world can we get the Grizzlies in such a mood?" Here lies the plight of a cheerleader!

Three other girls and I in short gold skirts and bulky white sweaters will be out on the floor tomorrow night yelling like mad at the guys. Don't get me wrong. We're not mad at the guys. (After all, why should we be, after that great battle with Weber last Saturday night?) We're just trying to get the idea across to the team that we want them to win.

But the Field House is a big place and four little female voices hardly make a dent in the acoustics. So we try to encourage the crowd to yell. This usually doesn't work unless the game is so exciting that cheerleaders aren't needed, anyway. But considering that our arch-rival Bozeman is the invader, that our previous victory over the Bobcats here is overshadowed by two losses there, and that a good crowd is expected, the rafters should tremble from the noise tomorrow night.

But don't worry about the rafters. They're pretty sturdy. As you're watching the game and yelling with the cheerleaders, the cheerleader on the right will be Kitty Van Vliet, a junior from Edmonton, Alta. She was a cheerleader in high school and has lots of pep.

Next in line you'll see yours truly, Emily Melton, sophomore from Kalispell. I was a cheerleader in high school too, and don't think I could watch a football or basketball game calmly if I wanted to. It's much more fun to chant and yell at the referee anyway.

On the left end of the line tomorrow night will be Patty Clark from Billings. Patty was named outstanding freshman woman at Matrix Table Sunday night. This year has been her first as a cheerleader and as the youngest member of our troupe, she keeps the young spirit alive.

We'll see and hear you at the game tomorrow night!

Attempt to Kill HUAC Scuttled by Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee yesterday killed a proposal to abolish the Committee on Un-American Activities as an independent group and make it a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

The vote that tabled the proposal was 12-1. The dissenter was Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo. Two members were absent.

The rules group acted after hearing contentions that the plan to change the status of the Committee on Un-American Activities was part of the Communist conspiracy and would give substantial aid to our enemies.

Race and Religious Issues Slow Aid to Education Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's omnibus education bill ran head on Tuesday into the issues of race and religion, which have helped kill previous education measures.

Witnesses at a House Education subcommittee hearing opposed federal support for church-related institutions or segregated public schools.
